

Department of Education

The Department of Education at Biswa Bangla Biswabidyalay is dedicated to preparing reflective, research-oriented educators and policy professionals who can drive transformative change across the learning spectrum—from early childhood to higher education and lifelong learning. Grounded in the principles of equity, inclusion, and innovation, the department blends foundational studies in philosophy, psychology, sociology, and history of education with hands-on engagement in contemporary pedagogies and educational technologies.

At the master's level, our curriculum features:

- Core Foundations – Advanced courses in learning theories, curriculum design, assessment, and educational leadership.
- Specialised Pathways – Electives in teacher education, inclusive education, educational policy & planning, ICT-enabled learning, and comparative international education.
- Research & Practice – A robust action-research component, practicum placements in partner schools and NGOs, and workshops on qualitative and quantitative methods.
- Community & Outreach – Extension programmes that support local schools, literacy drives, and capacity-building for educators, aligning with regional and national educational priorities.

Faculty members combine scholarly expertise with on-ground experience, fostering a collaborative environment where students critically examine educational challenges and develop evidence-based solutions. Graduates emerge equipped for careers as teacher-educators, curriculum specialists, education officers, instructional designers, and researchers—upholding the university's commitment to human development through enlightened and socially responsive education.
