

Department of Bengali and Tagore Studies.

The Department of Bengali and Tagore Studies brings to life the rich tapestry of Bengali language and culture. We are particularly passionate about exploring Rabindranath Tagore's enduring influence. His words and ideas still resonate deeply throughout Bengal and far beyond our borders. We prefer undertaking a fresh approach to academic study, blending time-honored literary traditions with modern perspectives. Our students dive into Bengali literature from its medieval roots to contemporary works, while also getting to know Tagore - not just as a literary giant, but as a revolutionary thinker whose impact touched everything from music/performing arts to education and rural development.

When you are pursuing a post graduate degree with us, you will develop into not only just a student of literature but also you will become a part of a community that thinks critically about Bengali heritage while building solid research skills. We love bringing people together through our regular seminars, festivals, and guest lectures, creating spaces where traditional and modern literary ideas can spark exciting conversations.

Our department feels right at home in a university that embraces Tagore's dream of learning without walls. We are proud to carry forward his vision of education that breaks down barriers, while staying deeply connected to Bengal's cultural roots and Tagore's belief in our shared humanity. If you are curious about exploring where language, culture, and philosophy intersect in Bengali tradition, you will find your place here.

Faculty:

1. Prof. Munmun Gangopadhyay.
2. Dr. Dinabandhu Mondal.
3. Dr. Keka Ghosh.
4. Dr. Bapi Naskar.
5. Mr. Harichand Das.
6. Dr. Sanjay Ghosh.
7. Dr. Sagnik Dasgupta.
8. Dr. Bharat Das.
9. Dr. Seikh Kmal Uddin.
10. Dr. Plaban Singha.
11. Dr. Rajkumar Das.
12. Dr. Kalyan Mukhopadhyay.
13. Dr. Nibedita Biswas.